

ivy tillman (ze/zir/zirs), United Women of Color Board Member ivy tillman (ze/zir/zirs), formerly a Western Massachusetts resident, lives in Madison, AL on the unceded lands of the Cherokee and Creek, very close to the Trail of Tears. A retired IT professional, ivy now spends the majority of zir time in volunteering in zir church as a UCC ONA Coalition coach, a Racial Justice facilitator, and as a member of the Just Peace Players, a liturgical drama troupe.

In addition to volunteering with United Women of Color (UWOC), ze also works on social justice issues with local and state community partners, among them Moms Demand Action AL/Everytown for Gun Violence Prevention (MDA-AL/Everytown), as well as hosting--and sometimes leading--virtual workshops with the Sojourner Truth School for Social Change Leaders. ze appreciates the thought, care and collaboration that goes into the work of each of these groups, and ze is very happy that they give zir a public platform to practice and model inclusiveness now that ze has retired. ze loves to play Scrabble: sadly, no one will play with ze...
